

Should States Be Given Autonomy In Developing Health Reform?

May 04, 2009 by Jeff Robinson

(KCPW News) Last week, the speaker of the Utah House of Representatives was in Washington, D.C., to encourage the federal government to give individual states flexibility to implement their own reforms to the health care system. But one local advocacy group is concerned about that approach. KCPW's Jeff Robinson reports.

Download this audio file