

RADIOACTIVE: 1/26/16

January 26, 2016

<http://www.krcl.org/blog/radioactive-12616/>

by Lara Jones

EPA hearing, medical cannabis, health care and justice reform, plus death with dignity on tonight's show.

First, the RadioActive Report, which included a call-in from Matt Pacenza, HEAL Utah, about the EPA public hearing going on at the City Library til 8 p.m. Plus other environmental news and events with KRCL's Amy Dwyer TRUCE is a group of patients and caregivers advocating for safe, legal access to medical cannabis in Utah. TRUCE co-founders Christine Stenquist and Paul Hill and Sarah Ellett share who they're fighting for, as well as news of two medical cannabis bills making the rounds on Utah's Capitol hill:

An update on the push for health care reform with Jason Stevenson and RyLee Curtis of the Utah Health Policy Project

Vickie Samuelson of the League of Women Voters of Utah breaks down that non-partisan group's Death with Dignity study, while Rep. Rebecca Chavez-Houck (D-Dist. 24, SLC, Minority Whip) talks about the End of Life Options bill she'll run this legislative session. Stick around for the end when she slips in a comment about health care reform, too:

If you have an idea -- guest, topic, something new -- for RadioActive, send an email to radioactive@krcl.org. Be sure to write the name of the host in the subject line if you want that person to consider your idea