ST. GEORGE - A health care community discussion is scheduled for tomorrow in St. George that will give participants a chance to discuss the health care system as part of a national reform.

President-elect Barack Obama believes that every American should have high-quality and affordable health care.

Obama and Health and Human Services secretary nominee Tom Daschle have requisitioned nationwide grassroots input on national health reform.

For more information about the local meeting, co-sponsored by the Utah Health Policy Project and the Association for Utah Community Health, read tomorrow's edition of The Spectrum & Daily News.
