2020 Federal Elections: Results Reflect Split Electorate

Presidential (electoral votes)

■ Biden ■ Trump

Senate (total seats)

■ Democrat ■ Republican ■ Runoff

House of Representatives

■ Democrat ■ Republican ■ Uncalled

Only a Slight Shift in “Political Winds”, But Enough for Biden Win

Key Takeaways

- Biggest turnout since 1900. Biden won by over 5 million votes, more than any other candidate in history and Trump increased his vote count by almost 9 million people.
- Trump solidified support among Republicans--many areas that swung right in 2016 stayed there
- People of color overwhelmingly supported Biden, but Trump made gains with people of color including Latinos, Asians, and Black men.
- Biden was able to pick up support with key demographics that supported Trump in 2016
  - Independents & moderates (particularly in suburbs) swung to Biden, a key in battlegrounds where they had swung right in 2016
  - Biden also swung middle income voters, Catholics & made critical gains with white men, white evangelicals, voters age 45-64 and 65+

Implications for Federal Action on Health

Health will Be Front-and-Center This Year

Key Health Care Priorities for New Congress and Administration

Other Key Issues Connected With Reforms:

Medicare oral health coverage, enrollment simplification, etc.

Considerations for Advancing Health in 2021

- Nationally coordinated pandemic response and economic relief still top of the list of priorities. State Fiscal Relief?
- Senate dynamics will be central. Must be able to garner moderates like Manchin (D-WV), Murkowski (R-AK), and Collins (R-ME)
- ACA-SCOTUS Dynamics. Despite very strong legal arguments, politicization of SCOTUS means the future of the ACA hangs squarely in the balance. Incredibly important issue for Biden Administration – GA runoffs may have saved the ACA...
- Several key priorities such as rolling back harmful Medicaid waivers and Medicaid improvements, racial justice and health equity, protections for immigrant families, reproductive freedom, enrollment simplification, HIX affordability improvements, likely to be centered action
- Health care affordability still at the center of most voter's minds (Rs and Ds). Opportunities for action around Rx Pricing, private coverage and other affordability concerns remain in play on both Congressional and Administrative levels
